

Perceived Impacts of Waste and Waste Water on Aquaculture and Capture Fisheries at San Juanico Strait

A Case Study

This study focuses on the awareness and perception of local fisherfolk on the impacts of wastes and waste water from resettlement areas on their fishing ground and aquaculture area which is the San Juanico Strait. It also gathered proposed solutions and recommended policies that address the problem of pollution in the mentioned body of water from focus group discussions and key informant interviews.